UNESCO's support for the Earth Charter

The General Conference,

Considering that:

- Over the decade of the 1990s, there has been a worldwide, multicultural, multisectoral consultation process for the creation of an instrument that contains the shared values, principles and ethics that can guide our efforts towards a sustainable future,
- Today, the international community has the Earth Charter as an instrument, which contains fundamental principles for building a just, sustainable and peaceful global society,
- The Earth Charter sets forth an integrated approach to addressing our interrelated problems the world community faces. This ethical framework involves respect and responsibility for the community of life, ecological integrity, social and economic justice and equity, democracy, alleviation of poverty, non-violence and peace,
- The Earth Charter is part of a continuing process generated by the United Nations Brundtland Commission's (1987) call for a new code of ethics for sustainable development, and the unfinished issue of the Rio Earth Summit, which attempted adoption of an ethical framework for sustainability, and
- UNESCO is a Task Manager in the United Nations system of Chapters 15 (Science) and 36 (Education) of Agenda 21,

This proposal was received by the Secretariat on 19 September 2003.

Resolves to:

1. Recognize the Earth Charter as an important ethical framework for sustainable development, and convey its support to the actual content of the Earth Charter, as an expression that coincides the vision that UNESCO has with regard to their new Medium-Term Strategy for 2002-2007;
2. Affirm our intention, as Member States, to utilize the Earth Charter as an educational instrument, particularly in the framework of the United Nations Decade for Education for Sustainable Development;
3. Invite the UNESCO General Conference to analyse with the UNESCO Director-General how to reinforce, in a practical way, the vision and principles of the Earth Charter in UNESCO programmes.
