Item 57 of the provisional agenda

REVISION OF THE STATUTES OF THE WORLD COMMISSION ON THE ETHICS OF SCIENTIFIC KNOWLEDGE AND TECHNOLOGY (COMEST)

SUMMARY

Under item 182 EX/56, the Executive Board is invited to consider recommending that the General Conference initiate the process for a possible universal declaration of ethical principles in relation to climate change, which could lead to the development of a draft declaration for submission to the 36th session of the General Conference. The World Commission on the Ethics of Scientific Knowledge and Technology (COMEST) would be expected to play a major role in advising the Director-General in the course of this work and its possible follow-up.

In order to enable COMEST to make the contribution expected of it, in the context of its other major commitments, to advise UNESCO on programmes in science ethics, the ethics of nanotechnologies and environmental ethics teaching, its capacity should be reinforced by giving it a structure identical to other expert advisory bodies, including specifically the International Bioethics Committee.

With this in mind, it is proposed to revise the Statutes of COMEST to expand its membership and Bureau and to increase the frequency of ordinary sessions.

Financial and administrative implications: see paragraph 7.

Action required of the Executive Board: see decision in paragraph 8.

I. BACKGROUND

1. At its Sixth Ordinary Session (16-19 June 2009), the World Commission on the Ethics of Scientific Knowledge and Technology (COMEST), drawing conclusions from its ongoing work on the ethical implications of global climate change, noted that, in view of the nature and extent of the scientific, social and human challenges of global climate change, which necessitate adoption of policies at the global level to address the pressing needs of the most vulnerable in the face of major uncertainties and the exigencies of international cooperation, it is urgent to determine universal ethical principles to guide responses to such challenges. COMEST therefore recommended that UNESCO should develop an ethical framework of principles in relation to climate change.

2. Under item 182 EX/56, the Executive Board is invited to consider recommending that the General Conference request the Director-General to commence work on a draft universal declaration of ethical principles in relation to climate change, which could lead to development of a draft declaration for submission to the 36th session of the General Conference. The World Commission on the Ethics of Scientific Knowledge and Technology (COMEST) would be expected to play a major role in advising the Director-General in the course of such work and its possible follow-up.

3. In addition to new work on ethics and climate change, COMEST has significant commitments in the area of science ethics – including contributing to monitoring of the implementation of the 1974 Recommendation on the Status of Scientific Researchers –, ethics of nanotechnologies and environmental ethics teaching.

4. On the basis of experience with analogous feasibility studies and with their follow-up in other areas of ethics, such as bioethics, the additional workload required by extensive consultation requirements on the development of a universal declaration of ethical principles in relation to climate change is unlikely to be manageable by COMEST in its current configuration.

5. In order to enhance the capacity of COMEST, consistent with the tasks requested of it, it is therefore appropriate to modify the Statutes of COMEST in order to align its structure with that of the International Bioethics Committee. Pursuant to Article 10 of the Statutes, “The present Statutes may be modified by the Executive Board at its own initiative or on a proposal by the Director-General”.

6. The specific modifications proposed are as follows:

- the number of members should be expanded from 18 to 36, in order to ensure a wider range of expertise and better geographical representation (Article 3.1);
- the current status of ex officio membership (Article 3.5) should be abolished to compensate for the increase in individual membership, without prejudice to participation in the work of COMEST by specialists from international scientific programmes or associations pursuant to Articles 3.1 and 3.6 of the Statutes;
- the frequency of ordinary sessions should be increased from biennial to annual (Article 5.1);
- the Bureau should be expanded by the creation of two additional positions of Vice-President (Article 6.1) and the timing of elections and the term of office of Bureau members should henceforth be specified by the Rules of Procedure, by analogy with the Rules of Procedure of the International Bioethics Committee.

7. Increased membership of COMEST will entail an additional recurring financial cost for organization of sessions and Bureau meetings of $140,000 per biennium, for which allocations will be made within the Draft Programme and Budget (35 C/5 Rev. for MP III). No financial implications are taken into account in this estimation of the contribution of COMEST to any work on a universal declaration of ethical principles in relation to climate change. Such implications are addressed in document 182 EX/56.

II. CONCLUSION

8. Accordingly, the Executive Board may wish to consider adopting the following draft decision:

The Executive Board

1. Having examined documents 182 EX/56 and 182 EX/57,
2. Considering that it would be advisable to amend the Statutes of COMEST in the event that the General Conference were to decide to ask the Director-General to initiate work on a possible universal declaration of ethical principles in relation to climate change,
3. Decides pursuant to Article 10 of the Statutes, to adopt the amendments proposed in document 182 EX/57, with effect from the date on which both of the following conditions have been met:
 - (a) the General Conference has adopted a decision to ask the Director-General to initiate work on a declaration or similar instrument on ethical principles in relation to climate change; and
 - (b) funding has been secured within the Approved Programme and Budget (35 C/5 for MP III) to cover the additional recurring financial costs entailed by the amendments.
